PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS: Tribal America has brought to this great Nation certain values and ideas that inform the American spirit, including the knowledge that humans can thrive and prosper while still preserving and protecting the natural environment and that diversity can be a source of strength, rather than division; and

WHEREAS: The third week in September of each year shall be known in Arkansas as "Native American Heritage Week" to honor the unique role that Indian tribes have played in our State and their rich contributions to the history of Arkansas, since the days when the first European explorers met Indians whose ancestors had occupied the region for thousands of years; and

WHEREAS: Native American Heritage Week honors all Native-American Indians from all tribes and recognizes the original peoples of this land, as we demonstrate our gratitude for their contributions to the past and to the future;
